GILBERT STUART.

Born at Narragansett, Rhode Island, December 3, 1755; died Boston July 27, 1828. After some unaided efforts he received instruction from Cosmo Alexander, a Scotch portrait painter, whom he accompanied to Scotland in 1772. He found a friend in Benjamin West, whose studio he entered as a pupil, but soon became an assistant to his master. In 1785 he set up a studio of his own in London, achieving marked popularity and financial success. He visited Ireland in 1788, where he was received with great favor, and painted the portraits of many distinguished persons. He returned to America in 1792.

Among his sitters in Europe were Louis XVI, George III and George IV, while Prince of Wales. He also painted Alderman Boydell, John Kemble, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Benjamin West and many distinguished artists. The six presidents of the United States who sat to him for their portraits were George Washington, John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, James Monroe and John Quincy Adams.

His portrait of Sir Ashley Cooper, the sixth Earl of Shaftesbury, in the Toledo Museum, was painted in Washington, D. C., in 1799. Sir Ashley's grandfather was the Ashley Cooper who obtained the grant of the State of South Carolina, which he proposed to develop solely in his personal interest, but for some reason failed to carry out his plans. The Ashley and Cooper Rivers in South Carolina were named for him.

41. THE COAST.

BENJAMIN WEST, R. A.

Born in 1738. He began to draw when seven years old and took his first lessons in preparing colors from the Indians. After brief instruction from a painter named Williams, he set up, when eighteen years old, in Philadelphia as a portrait painter; thence removed to New York and in 1760 went to Italy, where he remained until 1763, when he settled in London. From 1769 to 1801 all his commissions were from George III, who made him his historical painter. West was one of the founders of the Royal Academy, and in 1792 succeeded Sir Joshua Reynolds as its president.

42. THE HERO RETURNED. Installed in the Maurice A. Scott Gallery by Florence Scott Libbey.

S. JESSIE WEST.

This water color, painted in rural France, was shown in the New York Water Color Club exhibit in 1905. Miss West, who is a Toledo artist, was a pupil at the Art Students' League, New York, and at the Academie Delecluse, Paris, where, in 1895, she received first mention and the award of Puvis de Chavannes. Miss West exhibited in the Paris Salon of 1895 and in the Paris Exposition of 1900.

43. WHERE POPPIES BLOOM.

ALMON C. WHITING.

Almon C. Whiting, pupil of Whistler, Constant, Laurens, at the Academy Julian; studied at the Ecole des Beaux-Arts under Jerome, and at the Delecluse Academy under Lhermitte and Cazin. Mr. Whiting was the first director of the Toledo Museum of Art.

44. NOTRE DAME, PARIS.

England

WALTER GREAVES.

Walter and Henry Greaves were pupils and close companions of Whistler as far back as 1863. The father of the Greaves boys was a boat builder in Chelsea. He had rowed Turner about on the river as his two sons were later to row Whistler. The Greaves boys idolized their master and apparently had but little thought of themselves and their own talents. Walter Greaves has lived quietly all these years in Chelsea in comparative obscurity. In 1911, when he was seventy years of age, an exhibition of his works was brought together in the Goupil Galleries, London, and the news was flashed throughout the world that a master as great as Whistler himself had received tardy recognition. Walter Greaves' style is very similar to that of Whistler, and yet it has unusual charm and great qualities all its own. Some two years before Walter Greaves was "discovered" to the world, Mr. Carl B. Spitzer, of Toledo, rummaging about in an old London book shop, found a striking portrait of Whistler in oil signed by Greaves. Recognizing its importance, he purchased it and presented it to the Toledo Museum of Art. Aside from its artistic excellence, it is also one of the most interesting and valuable portraits of Whistler in existence.

45. PORTRAIT OF JAMES MCNEILL WHISTLER.
Gift of C. B. Spitzer.

JOHN LAVERY.

One of a group of painters known as the Glasgow School. He was born in Belfast, Ireland, in 1858. Studied art at Haldane Academy, Glasgow; Heatherley's, London, and in Paris under Bouguereau and Tony Robert Fleury. Among his best known paintings are the "Bridge at Grez," in the Carnegie Galleries, Pittsburgh; his "Tennis Party," in the New Pinakothek, Munich; "The State Visit of the Queen to Glasgow," in the Corporation Gallery, Glasgow; "A Lady in Black," in the National Gallery, in Berlin, and "The Rocking Chair," in the Scottish National Gallery, Edinburgh.

46. MOONLIGHT, TETUAN, MOROCCO. Gift of
C. W. Kraushaar.

DANIEL MACLISE, R. A.

1811 to 1870. Born in Cork, Ireland. His paintings, "The Death of Nelson at Trafalgar," and "The Meeting of Wellington and Blucher at Waterloo," hang in the Royal Gallery of the new houses of Parliament. Two of his pictures are in the National Gallery at London, and his "Scenes from Midas" was in the private collection of Queen Victoria. After the death of Sir Edwin Landseer, he was offered the presidency of the Royal Academy and also a knighthood, both of which honors he refused.

54. THE BANKS OF THE EURE. Gift of Geo. Durand-Ruel.

HENRY MORET.

Born at Cherbourg, France, 1856. He is one of the foremost members of the modern French school of Impressionists. His painting, "Seaweed Gatherers," shows peasants gathering seaweed at Tre-vignon in Brittany. It is gathered into long piles and sold to the farmers for fertilizing purposes.

55. SEAWEED GATHERERS. Gift of Geo. Durand-Ruel.

FRANCOIS RIVOIRE.

Born at Lyons, France. Pupil of Jean Reigner. His studies of flowers in water colors were yearly hung in the Paris Salon from 1865 to 1890. "Roses et Flox" was in the Salon of 1882.

56. ROSES ET FLOX.

ANTOINE VOLLON.

1833 to 1900. Born at Lyons, France; pupil of the Lyons Academy and of Ribot. He went to Paris and made his debut at the Salon of 1864. His subjects were mostly still life. Awarded medals, 1865, 1868, 1869; first class, 1878; Legion of Honor, 1870; Officer, 1878; member of the Beaux-Arts, 1897. Represented in the Luxembourg, Paris, the Metropolitan Museum, New York, and other important museums.

57. FRUIT AND FLOWERS.

Holland

J. H. S. KEVER.

Born in Holland in 1854. Studied at Greives studio. He is an important representative of the modern Dutch school. Many of his subjects are taken from the life of the quaint town of Laren in northern Holland.

58. SISTERS.

EVART PIETERS.

Born in Holland in 1856. A representative member of the modern Dutch school of genre painters. "In the Month of May" is one of his largest and most important canvasses.

59. IN THE MONTH OF MAY. Gift of Edward D. Libbey.

WILM STEELINK.

A prominent Dutch painter of sheep and landscape. His "Sheep in Pasture" was the first painting owned by the Toledo Museum of Art.

60. SHEEP IN PASTURE. Gift of Graff M. Acklin.

Russia

N. N. BOUNIN.

65. THE FISHERMEN. Gift of A. M. Chesbrough.

BENJAMIN N. POPOFF.

Member of the Imperial Academy of Arts. His painting, "The Weaver," was awarded a Bronze Medal at the St. Louis Exposition.

66. THE WEAVER. Gift of Harry E. King.

PAVEL D. SCHMAROFF.

Member of the Imperial Academy of Arts, St. Petersburg, Russia. His "Lady in Carriage" was awarded a Gold Medal at the St. Louis Exposition. The picture, which is most interesting technically, shows a lady in black driving in a Victoria on the crowded boulevard. It is the impression of a second, the wink of an eye. The swish of the boulevard is indicated swiftly, but surely, with a few strokes of the brush. Christian Brinton, the eminent critic, in an article in the Booklover's Magazine, writes of Schmaroff's brilliant, fluent handling and exquisite melting tonality. "In his Lady in Carriage," says the writer, "the artist enters the ultra modern and modish sphere of existence with equal felicity. His work reveals the easy mastery of our latter day apostles of Velasquez without the least sacrifice of Slavic flavor."

67. LADY IN CARRIAGE. Gift of A. M. Cheshbrough.

S. M. SEIDENBERG.

Member of the Imperial Academy of Arts, St. Petersburg, Russia. His painting, "The Plowers," was shown at the St. Louis Exposition under the title, "Episode in the Reign of Roman Galitsky." The Prince of Red Russia, returning from a successful campaign against Lithuania, brought home an enormous number of Lithuanian prisoners, whom he caused to be treated like cattle, yoking them to crude wooden plows. The picture shows three men and a woman, driven afield like beasts, hitched with shackled hands and feet to the plow, or ralo, as it was called. Christian Brinton, writing of this painting in the Booklovers' Magazine for February, 1906, says: "For strength of handling, coupled with a moving sense of nature and a profound appreciation of dumb agony and forbearance, it would be difficult to excel Seidenberg's canvas."

68. THE PLOWERS. Gift of Albion E. Lang.

V. P. VERESTCHAGIN.

Member of the Imperial Academy of Arts, Russia. His painting, "The Golden Cloud," was shown in the Russian section at the St. Louis Exposition. It illustrates a passage in the poem entitled "The Cliff," by the Russian poet, Lermontoff. A cloud has rested on the mountain top during the night, and now, bathed in the gold of the morning sun, it floats gently away, leaving the mountain sad and dejected.

69. THE GOLDEN CLOUD. Gift of A. M. Chesbrough.

I. A. VELTZ.

Member of the St. Petersburg Society of Artists. One of the Russian painters represented in the Russian section of the St. Louis Exposition.

70. VALLEY OF THE DNEIPER. Gift of A. M. Chesbrough.

JANUARIUS ZICK.

Born in 1733 in Munich. He was at first a pupil of his father, Johann Zick, but in 1757 he went to Basle and then to Rome. On his return he was, in 1761, appointed court painter at Coblentz. He also painted extensively in the churches of Upper Swabia and in Biberach. He died at Ehrenbreitstein in 1797.

72. THE CROWN OF THORNS. Gift of J. G. Moulton.

SALVATOR ROSA.

Born near Naples, Italy, in 1615. When but eighteen years of age, he associated with and studied the bandits, and many compositions from his brush deal with the exciting experiences incident to their career. He was noted as a painter of battle scenes, his figures being full of movement and expression.

MAY ALCOTT.

May Alcott, sister of Louisa May Alcott, the writer, was one of the best, if not the foremost, translators of Turner, and in England her copies are much esteemed. They were praised by Ruskin and are used by the pupils at South Kensington. This example of her work is after Turner's "Burial of Wilkie."

74. BURIAL OF WILKIE. Gift of E. D. Libbey.

SIR EDWARD BURNE-JONES.

1833 to 1898. One of the most brilliant of the English artists of the Victorian era. Besides achieving great prominence as a painter, he produced a vast amount of decorative work in co-operation with the late William Morris. This cartoon, entitled "Charity," for a stained glass window in a church at Oxford, England, was executed in glass at the shop of William Morris.

75. CHARITY. Gift of E. D. Libbey.

FELIX O. C. DARLEY, N. A.

1822 to 1882. Born at Philadelphia. Famous as an illustrator of Dickens, Cooper and Hawthorne. In 1850 was engaged by American Art Union to engrave illustrations for Irving's works. His painting, "Emigrants Attacked by Indians," was painted for Prince Napoleon. He exhibited in the Paris Exposition of 1867, and his "Street Scene in Rome" was at the Philadelphia Centennial of 1876. Mrs. Warren Colburn, of Toledo, who has presented these two water colors by Darley to the Toledo Museum, is a sister-in-law of the artist.

JOHN LA FARGE.

1835 to 1910. Born at New York. Son of French parents. Taught by his grandfather, Binesse Saint-Victor. Went to Paris and entered studio of Thomas Couture. Influenced in early days by William M. Hunt. Came home and tried law, but relinquished it for art. Settled and painted at Newport, R. I. Began mural work with a decoration in Trinity Church, Boston. Subsequently did more such work, his masterpiece being in Church of Ascension, Fifth Avenue, New York. The distinctive feature of his career was the application of opal glass to stained glass windows. He was a distinguished writer and lecturer. These fifty water colors and drawings are the gift of E. D. Libbey.

Carroll Beckwith, N. A.

Carroll Beckwith was born in Hannibal, Missouri, in 1852. Although baptized James Carroll Beckwith, the name James was soon dropped, and is never employed by the artist in signing his canvases. In 1871 he entered the Academy of Design in New York, after several years' preparatory work under Walter Shirlaw in Chicago. Admitted to the studio of Carolus-Duran in 1873, he studied there and under Yvon at the Ecole des Beaux-Arts. For a number of years he maintained a studio in Paris with his fellow student, John S. Sargent. Returning to New York in 1878, Mr. Beckwith was associated with William M. Chase, as instructor in the newly organized Art Students' League, a position he filled with great credit to himself for a period of eighteen years.

Mr. Beckwith has been the recipient of many honors both in this country and abroad. He is represented in many private collections, galleries and institutions throughout the United States, including John Herron Art Institute, Toledo Museum of Art, Yale University, Johns Hopkins, West Point Military Academy, Historical Societies of Massachusetts and New York, Bar Association of New York, the Union, Union League, City, Raquet, and Calumet Club of New York. Academician of the National Academy of Design and President of the National Free Art League. Mr. Beckwith is also a member of the American Water Color Society, Salmagundi Club and National Institute of Arts and Letters. Teacher of sound principles of drawing, his influence among the younger American artists has been widely beneficial, and his high achievement in the field of portraiture an inspiration to many. The present collection offers an attractive introduction to the more intimate side of his art.
